TAKE SURVEY >>

August 2020: Everyone's resources have been affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. You can help prevent locate delays by pre-marking your proposed dig area in white and notifying 811 of your planned excavation with as much lead time as is possible in your state.

Review these tips with coworkers at your tailgate or toolbox meetings before work begins to help avoid potential hazards when working near overhead power lines, and underground power or natural gas lines.

Horizontal directional drilling (HDD) is like threading a large needle through a maze of existing underground utilities—while blindfolded! Mistakes can be costly, causing injury or even death to you, your crew or the public, and you can be held liable for outages that disrupt critical community services.

As with any excavation, it's essential to notify 811 to have underground utility lines located and marked before you dig, but you've got to take it a step further when you are using HDD:

- Inform 811 that you'll be using HDD.
- Pre-mark your proposed route with white paint, stakes and/or flags to help locators identify all the utility lines in your dig area.

Then follow these “SAFE 8” drilling practices to assure your success.

1.

Verify that all facilities have been marked, and walk the planned drill path, looking for gas meters, manhole covers and other indications of underground utilities that haven't been marked. Maintain all locate documentation at the site.

2. When working within 10 feet of switch cabinets and terminal poles, expose all drill exits before boring begins.
3. Pothole all facilities at the point where your bore path will cross them. Be sure to pothole to the full depth of your bore path.
4. Look into the potholes and watch the bore head and back reamer cross all facilities.
5. Maintain a 3-foot clearance when crossing below an exposed utility line.
6. Maintain a 2-foot clearance when crossing above an exposed utility line.
7. Maintain a 3-foot separation when paralleling underground utility lines.
8. Never stack new facilities above or below existing underground utility lines.

- Natural Gas Emergencies: 800.895.2999
- Colorado only: Gas Transmission Pipeline Emergencies: 800.698.7811

Call before you clear a sewer clog or blockage.

Some sewer laterals may have natural gas pipelines intersecting them, in what is known as a "cross bore." So, it's critical that you contact Xcel Energy before clearing any clogged sewer or drain lines to ensure you can proceed without the risk of puncturing a natural gas line. Please call our 24-hour emergency number at 1-800-895-2999.

Cross bore risks are on the rise

Due to more non-flushable items being flushed in toilets, we are likely to see a rise in sewer line blockages, resulting in more drain-cleaning in laterals. This heightens the risk of plumbers encountering existing cross bores.

Educating the public is a good prevention tool. Leverage your company's outreach programs to inform the public on what is flushable and what is not. Share the #wipesclogpipes message with your customers.

How cross bores happen

Xcel Energy uses horizontal directional digging to install natural gas lines underneath streets, driveways and mature trees. This approach is common in the utility industry because it causes less environmental disruption than open digging. Xcel Energy currently uses techniques to detect sewer lines during directional digging. Before these techniques existed, unintentional boring through older sewer lines may have occurred.

Know the dangers

A cross bore in a sewer lateral will impede flow and lead to eventual blockage. A worker who attempts to remove the blockage can accidentally cut the gas line and cause a dangerous release of natural gas. The resulting loss of service may not be immediately apparent. Gas can migrate undetected through the lateral and concentrate in sewer lines and nearby structures, causing a potential hazard.

Take these steps to work safely:

- Before clearing. Always call Xcel Energy at 1-800-895-2999 before you clear a sewer clog or blockage. We will determine if any conflicts exist between our natural gas lines and the blocked sewer line. If we detect a conflict, we will notify the customer and repair/reroute the gas line.
- During clearing. Play it safe and always proceed as if a cross bore might be present. As you go, feel for resistance that does not resemble a tree root or other common obstruction. Natural gas utility lines are typically plastic. If you must use a cutting tool, use gas detection equipment (e.g., combustible gas indicator) and look for yellow or orange plastic on the blades when you withdraw the tool. Also, watch for bubbles escaping from the entry point of the cutting equipment or toilet.
- If you suspect a gas leak. Immediately warn all inhabitants and evacuate the area. Do not use a flame or anything electrical, as a spark could ignite the gas. When you reach a safe location, call 9-1-1 and Xcel Energy immediately.

Know what's below.
Call 811 before you dig.

CALL BEFORE YOU DIG

The single greatest cause of damage to underground utilities—such as gas pipelines and electric lines—is from excavation and outside forces. If you, your school, your students or their family members plan to dig or move earth in any way—from planting a tree or shrub to repairing or installing irrigation lines or a fence—state law requires you to contact 811 first. This free service will arrange to have buried utility lines located and marked so you can dig a safe distance away from them. After you contact 811, wait your state's required time for lines to be marked before you dig: at least two to three full business days.

Warning signs of a natural gas leak

The warning signs of a natural gas leak could be a distinctive sulfur or rotten egg-like odor, dirt spraying or blowing in the air, a hissing or roaring sound, continuous bubbling in water, or plants or grass dead or dying for no apparent reason. If you suspect a natural gas leak:

- Leave the area immediately and move to a safe location.
- Call 911. Xcel Energy customers should also call 800.895.2999.
- Warn others to stay away.
- Even a tiny spark could ignite leaking natural gas, so take the following precautions until you are a safe distance away.
 - Do NOT use a telephone or cell phone.
 - Do NOT operate electric appliances or switches, such as lights, doorbells, radios, television controllers or garage door openers.
 - Do NOT strike a match or blow out any candles.
- NEVER try to extinguish a gas fire, stop the flow of gas or close a valve on an underground gas pipeline.

RESOURCES FOR A BRIGHT TOMORROW

Whether your students are in the classroom or at home this fall, our energy education resources can help them catch up on any 2020 learning losses they may have experienced, and reach grade-level standards in Language Arts/Reading and Science.

Student booklets

Convenient for classroom use

Our FREE booklets include teacher's guides and prepost tests to help you assess learning. Our guides make it easy to implement the lessons, with detailed background information, discussion points, follow-up activities and answer keys.

Ideal for home-based learning, too!

Our booklets give students a break from screen time and feature home energy activities, such as safety inspections and experiments, to engage the whole household. When students share safety resources with their families, everyone benefits.

e-SMARTkids website

Your hub for energy education

Our e-SMARTkids website, xcelenergy.e-smartkids.com, contains comprehensive learning modules on electrical and natural gas safety, renewable energy and solar power safety. Educational games, videos, experiments and activity sheets address core educational subject matter and support academic standards. Use our website in the classroom or for remote learning assignments to be completed at home.

Classroom activity cards

Visit the Teachers page on our e-SMARTkids website, for FREE downloadable natural gas and electrical classroom activity cards. Each card is a condensed classroom lesson that can be conducted on its own, or used to augment the lessons within student booklets, teacher guides and website modules. They include vocabulary words, an experiment, fun facts, a joke or brainteaser, and links to other resources. There are four cards, K-3 and 4-6 versions of both electrical and natural gas safety activities.

Order these resources and access a variety of educational materials online at xcelenergy.e-smartkids.com.

WorkerSafety

Electric and natural gas safety practices for you and your employees

Brought to you by:

STAY AWARE OF POWER LINES

- Review your job site every day to locate all electric utility equipment, and post it out to your crew.
- Review your emergency plan for responding to power line contacts.
- Assume all overhead lines are energized and potentially dangerous, including the service drops that run from utility poles to buildings. Keep people, tools and equipment at least 10 feet away.
- Cables and conductors may require clearances greater than 10 feet and should adhere to your relevant permit or jurisdiction. For specific requirements, contact your utility.
- If your equipment contacts a power line, call 811 and avoid Lineage assets/damage at 800.886.1888. For a power line assistance or question, contact Xcel Energy.

DON'T RISK IT... USE A SPOTTER

- An experienced operator cannot fully judge the distance from the equipment to overhead power lines on their own.
- Work with a spotter whose only responsibility is to keep you and your equipment a safe distance from overhead lines and other hazards.
- Workers grading a lot from the ground up in the most-dangerous work environment face an overhead power line, an electricity control through the top line and through them.
- Don't risk injury or death by trying to guide a load and spot it like some lines.

DAMAGE PREVENTION ONLY BEGINS WITH 811

- It's the law to contact 811 before you dig. It's the only way to dig safely.
- Your state requires lines before digging: CO, MD, MI, MN and WI – three business days; RI, MA, SD and TX – two business days. Your call activates for utilities to track their underground lines, including electric, cable and natural gas pipelines.
- If you don't call 811, you're taking an underground natural gas or electric hidden line. This could lead to injuries, fatalities, and serious loss of service to customers and possible fines. You or your contractors could be fined or jailed, and your job may be held liable for damages and repair costs.
- Before you dig, 811, outline to utilize your excavation mark or area to include an area nearby to the affected utilities.
- Before you begin for digging within the "tolerance zone" or "warning zone," a safety area that spans the width of a marked utility plus a 4-foot additional distance from each individual utility line. It varies by local dig within the tolerance zone in the leading cause of underground utility energy releases.
- Respect all marks and dig with care. Call 811 with any concerns. For more information, visit xcelenergy.com/linesurvey or xcelenergy.com/linesurvey.
- Dig safely. Consider a caution, damage prevention sign with standard markings.
- Dig slow and mark lines. Consider a caution, damage prevention sign with standard markings.

IF A NATURAL GAS LINE IS CONTACTED

- Warn others and leave the area quickly.
- Do not smoke or stamp off the line.
- Do not touch the line.
- Do not operate any gas pipeline valves.
- When you have reached a safe distance away, call 811, then call Xcel Energy, or your local natural gas provider, to report the gas emergency. Lines don't.
- Be prepared by law to call 811 in the event of emergency gas.
- For natural gas line work near or on equipment, contact Xcel Energy at 800.886.1888.
- Review your emergency plan for natural gas pipeline contacts.

Seven steps for safe excavation

1. Plan your work and pre-mark your dig area with white paint, flags and/or stakes.
2. Call 811 several working days before you dig. For more information, visit xcelenergy.com/community/public_safety/ or call 811 before you dig.
3. Wait the required time for utilities to locate and mark their lines.
4. Perform a pre-excavation site survey to ensure all utilities have been located.*
5. Respect the marks when digging.
6. Dig with care and follow hand excavation rules.
7. Communicate with utility owners through the one call center.

* One utility permit is not underground lines (water or other) by its customers. Dig for a gas, single or multiple lines, and other utilities, call for locations and mark lines.

Gas Leak Signs

- If you contact a natural gas pipeline
1. Warn others and leave the area quickly.
 2. Do not use matches, cell phones, radios or lighters, as even a tiny spark could ignite the gas.
 3. Do not operate any gas pipeline valves or stop the flow of gas.
 4. Leave the excavation open.
 5. When you have reached a safe distance away, call 911 and the local natural gas utility, or the emergency number posted on pipeline markers. Always call, even if damage is a minor risk or scrape.
 6. Stay away from the area until safety officials say it's safe to return.
 7. Report the incident to your supervisor.

- If your equipment contacts a power line
1. Move equipment away from the line if you can do so safely.
 2. Stay on equipment until utility workers tell you it is safe to leave.
 3. Keep others away from the line and anything it is touching.
 4. Call 911 and the local electric utility immediately.
 5. If few forces you to leave your equipment, jump clear without touching equipment and the ground at the same time. Land with your feet together and shuffle away with small steps.

To report emergencies, call 911 first and then the local electric or gas utility.

SFX: Sounds and appropriate ambient noises accompany each shot.

VO: YOU KNOW WHAT WE THINK A LOT ABOUT? ENERGY.

Video: A hand flicks a switch on a wall.

VO: CLEAN ENERGY. SMART ENERGY. NEW ENERGY. ALL KINDS OF ENERGY.

Video: A bolt of lightning etches across a night sky. The camera pulls back to reveal it's actually a contained electrical current jumping from one wire to another—> cut to: drone footage following a power line —> cut to: POV inside a power line wire chasing vibrant flutters of electric light —> as the camera reaches the end of the wire, it pulls out a tiny little hole —> camera continues pulling back to reveal the tiny hole was a power outlet mounted on a wall inside a garage.

VO: BUT YOU KNOW, THE SAFE KIND.

Video: Still looking at the same power outlet mounted on the wall, a hand reaches in and plugs in his amp —> cut wide: to see college kids rocking out in the garage. Cut to: A nurse ending her night shift unplugs her EV vehicle in the hospital parking garage and blasts off home. A new father turns up his smart thermostat, making sure the temperature is just right for his swaddled child. A mother in a bathrobe fires up the stove burner beneath a tea kettle in the blue light of dawn.

Charitable Contributions	1,168,991.57	3,369,498.33	3,372,238.75
Total	1,168,991.57	3,369,498.33	3,372,238.75
50% inclusion	584,495.79	1,684,749.16	1,686,119.37

The Company is permitted to recover 50 percent of charitable contributions benefiting Minnesota. Because charitable contributions are initially recorded below the line, an adjustment is necessary to include these costs in the test year and plan years.

In 2021-2023, the Company anticipates utilizing $17.5 million (Xcel Energy consolidated) in proceeds from the sale of the Mankato Energy Center (MEC) to cover Xcel Energy Foundation funding. This approach reduces the amount of charitable contributions included in NSPM rates while keeping the Company's charitable giving levels steady. Specifically, MEC proceeds are anticipated to fully fund the foundation in 2021 and 2022, leaving only the 2021-2023 Other Donations and a portion of the 2023 foundation funding in rates.

The Company's MYRP charitable contributions budget was then further reduced for ratemaking purposes by adjusting the test year and plan year budgets to reflect the actual 2020 contributions that should remain below the line. This application of a 2020 adjustment to the test year and plan years provides consistency and comparability across the MYRP years, bases the adjustment on the most recent year of actual data, and is consistent with the Company's employee expense adjustment process.

Finally, the Company makes the adjustment to include 50 percent of the net foundation funding and Other Donations in its revenue requirement.

Northern States Power Company
2022 -2024 MYRP
Association Dues

ELECTRIC	2022	2023	2024
Association Dues Excluded	35,502.15	37,185.50	36,567.84

An adjustment is required to remove costs associated with organizational dues that are not allowed for recovery from customers. Consistent with the Commission’s June 14, 1982 Statement of Policy on Organizational Dues, the Company is required to reduce administrative and general expenses for either social organizations or organizations not associated with the State of Minnesota.

The Association Dues adjustment for the rate case was based on an allocation of 2019 actual allowances applied to the applicable test year or plan year budget. This was done to provide consistency and comparability across the MYRP years and to base the adjustment on the last year of actual data consistent with the employee expense adjustment.

Jeff Davis	Nuclear	EPRI	10.1a Flexible Nuclear Plant Operations - The dynamics of the grid are changing due to increasing penetration of renewables, distributed energy, and changing consumer behavior. These changes may result in a greater need for increased flexibility of dispatchable generation to maintain grid reliability. Based on local grid conditions and utility fleet economics, flexible operations of nuclear power plants could become part of a utility fleet management strategy. Flexible operations also may emerge as a requirement for new plant projects; in some countries, new nuclear plants will represent a large percentage of load on a relatively small grid and will have to operate flexibly during periods of low demand. The Flexible Operations Program conducts research to inform decisions regarding flexible nuclear plant operations and characterizes the associated impacts on plant health and grid reliability. The program collects and shares operating experience on flexible operations, supports coordinated research among industry stakeholders, and executes EPRI R&D projects designed to identify and manage potential impacts from flexible operations on the plant and its components. The goals of the program are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Perform research to proactively identify and manage the potential impacts of FPO. • Collect global operating experience, evaluate how this experience integrates with research results, and incorporate into technical guidance related to FPO. • Engage stakeholders, subject matter experts, and research entities from around the world to ensure critical gaps are identified and addressed. • Publish technical reports based on the operating experience and research to help manage the impacts of flexible operations and support safe, reliable plant operations during FPO. 	$40,000	$29,178	$40,800	$29,761	$41,616	$30,356	87.1003%	83.7474%
Jeff Davis	Nuclear	EPRI	1.2 a SGMP - PWR Steam Generator Management Program Steam generator tubes are an integral part of the reactor coolant pressure boundary and have a number of important safety functions. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Maintain the primary system's pressure and inventory 2. Act as a heat transfer surface between the primary and secondary systems such that residual heat can be removed from the primary system 3. Isolate the radioactive fission products in the primary coolant from the secondary system 4. Help prevent uncontrolled fission product release under conditions resulting from core damage severe accidents The SGMP supports greater consistency in managing steam generator issues across the nuclear fleet, such as managing degradation with the more corrosion-resistant Alloy 600 TT, Alloy 690 TT, and Alloy 800 tubes. Program participants gain access to the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Strategic roadmaps outlining research gaps associated with key issues-such as foreign object management, tube integrity assessment, and steam generator life management-and the collaborative actions needed to address these gaps. • Guideline documents that reduce the potential for steam generator tube ruptures and forced leakage outages, which can cost an estimated $5 to $20 million per event. • Better tools for integrity assessments, informing decisions regarding examinations, which can cost an estimated $1 to $2 million per plant. • Performance information on steam generator examination techniques that can be used to optimize inspections, increasing the probability of detecting existing tube degradation mechanisms. • Chemistry controls that can delay the onset of corrosion and mitigate steam generator fouling. • A database of worldwide steam generator information related to degradation, used to inform decisions on steam generator operation and maintenance. 	$116,500.00	$84,980	$118,830	$86,680	$121,207	$88,414	87.1003%	83.7474%

Jeff Davis	Nuclear	EPRI	2.1a FRP - Fuel Reliability Program Nuclear fuel cladding is the first barrier to a fission product release to the general public. Maintaining the integrity and performance of control materials is required for the safe shutdown of the reactor. The Fuel Reliability Program performs research in these areas and on other fuel assembly components. Research results are incorporated into guidelines, reference reports, training packages and software products that enable nuclear plants to operate their plants in a safe, reliable and cost-effective manner. About $45-$50 billion of nuclear fuel is operating in commercial reactors worldwide. Every year, fuel costs comprise approximately 25% of total nuclear plant costs (i.e., operations and maintenance, capital, fuel). Optimizing the use of this asset while ensuring its safe operation is paramount to reliable and cost-effective plant operation. Fuel Reliability Program participants gain access to the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A strategic matrix that identifies gaps and coordinates technical efforts among nuclear stakeholders. The matrix is integral to identifying strategic research focus areas (RFAs) and technical projects where research is needed. • Technical guidance to improve fuel reliability and reduce economic risks associated with fuel failures, which have cost the U.S. nuclear industry more than $300 million over the past 15 years and the global nuclear industry two to three times that amount. • Insights derived from global operating experience with all types of nuclear fuel assemblies and reactor types to inform decision-making. • State-of-the-art software tools and methodologies using advanced modeling and simulation techniques to analyze fuel rod thermo-mechanical performance and assess crud and corrosion risk under a range of operating conditions. • Technical research to inform the development and modification of fuel-related regulations. • Assessment of breakthrough fuel concepts that could provide enhanced fuel failure margins during normal operation power maneuvers and additional response time before damage and fission product release occurs in accident scenarios. 	$137,273.00	$100,133	$140,018	$102,135	$142,819	$104,178	87.1003%	83.7474%

EPRI tracks evolving information related to external hazards and compiles periodic reports. Benefits include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • An efficient, shared resource for understanding changes in external hazards • Regular reporting of relevant updates to inform decisions regarding preparations for external hazards • Interpretation and analysis of information to identify technical insights and to clarify potential uncertainties 	$24,000.00	$17,507	$24,480	$17,857	$24,970	$18,214	87.1003%	83.7474%
Jeff Davis	Nuclear	EPRI	9.2f Radiation Management and Source Term Technical Strategy RMST TSG participants gain access to: (a) cutting-edge technology and expertise, (b) expert advice on emergent issues, and (c) the benefits associated with the implementation of assessment recommendations. Insights into specific technical issues, best practices, and other learnings also helps to inform the Radiation Safety Program base research. RMST TSG participants also gain access to workshops, associated deliverables, and one site-specific radiation management assessment per the three-year participation period. The assessment's detailed review of the site-specific parameters can help Identify potential gaps and delineate actions with the largest potential benefit. Assessment results may provide economic, performance, and/or regulatory compliance benefits. EPRI source-term reduction and ALARA technologies have realized significant benefits in personnel exposure control. EPRI's radiation field control technologies help reduce ex-core radiation fields and minimize worker dose. The Radiation Management and Source Term Strategy Group provides an opportunity to drive exposure performance success that, in turn, can support regulatory compliance and positively impact performance metrics and worker protection.	$48,500.00	$35,378	$49,470.00	$36,086	$50,459.00	$36,807	87.1003%	83.7474%

Jeff Davis	Nuclear	EPRI	9.6e PWR Chemistry Technical Strategy Group (includes PWR Zinc & Resin/Filter Groups) The group provides participants with a forum to benchmark their programs with others throughout the industry, and to take advantage of collaborative research efforts with plants sharing similar needs. Sharing of lessons learned and annual updates related to EPRI research programs provides participants with valuable information to guide planning and implementation. This includes both optimization and modification of existing programs, as well as first-time implementation of specific technologies. Lessons learned have resulted in reduced radiate and worker exposure, fuel performance optimization, mitigation of stress corrosion cracking, and enhanced overall plant performance.
